

TOOLBOX TALK • BEHAVIORS THAT MATTER

Real conversations.

A question, a concern or a quick check-in gives us the chance to address risk before it becomes an incident. Real conversations are not about blame. They are about looking out for one another.

Safety starts with speaking up.

01*Look out for one another

People doing the work often see risk first. Check in, and step in respectfully when something does not look right.

02Speak up early

Ask when you are unsure. Raise hazards before work continues. One respectful conversation can change the outcome.

03How we respond matters

Listen. Thank people for speaking up. Focus on the risk, not the person.

TODAY'S CHALLENGE

Speak up. Listen. Look out for one another.

Have one meaningful safety conversation today. Ask, observe, check in or say thanks.
